SCHOFIELD SOCIETY

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)
SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, June 3.—Col. Samuel D. Sturgis was the guest of honor on Wednesday evening at the delightful reception and hop given for him in farewell by his officers and ladies of the 1st Field Artillery. The rooms of the Mounted Service Club were beautifully decorated for the occasion; a wealth of ferns, feathery pepper branches and blossoming lehua bushes making a charming background for the crossed regimental guidons, their brilliant red giving dash and color to the effective ensemble. In the reception room the receiving party stood across one corner banked with ferns and ti branches, the regimental crest in colors surmounting the green mass. Standing with Col. Sturgis were Col. John McMahon, Mrs. Augustine McIntyre, Maj. T. N. Horn, Mrs. Charles Lloyd, Maj. William S. Guignard and Capt. and Mrs. John Corey. In the dining room the artillery color was especially prominent, the large round table, from which the supper was served, having quantities of red South African daisies for decorations, the same flowers combined with fluted asparagus fern appearing on the coffee table, behind which was a pretty effect attained with greens and the red hibiscus flowers in banded arrangement. The national colors and the regimental standard were crossed against the wall behind the supper table splendidly dominating the room. The 1st Field Artillery band played a program of unusually attractive music for the dancing in the pavilion. After the eighth dance mess call was sounded and every one adjourned to the club, where Mrs. John Hauser and Mrs. Harold Vandever assisted Mrs. Charles Lloyd in serving supper. Mrs. Raymond Pratt and Mrs. Pelham Glassford presiding at the coffee table. The guests present at this most enjoyable affair included most of the officers and ladies of Schofield Barracks.

Lieut. and Mrs. Louie A. Beard entertained at supper in honor of Col. Sturgis on Wednesday evening before the hop, there being present 18 guests. Yellow coropais was used as a decorative motif for the several tables, the yellow tint of the flowers being carried out in candelabra shades and other appointments. Present were Col. Sturgis, Capt. and Mrs. Charles Lloyd, Lieut. and Mrs. Jerome Pillow, Lieut. and Mrs. Howell Estes, Lieut. and Mrs. William Nalle, Lieut. and Mrs. John Herr, Lieut. and Mrs. Robert Cheney, Capt. John Kilbreth, Lieut. James Ulio, Lieut. Charles Haverkamp and Lieut. and Mrs. Beard.

Capt. and Mrs. Augustine McIntyre entertained on Wednesday, giving a dinner for 30. Five tables were used at which the guests were seated, and the decorations were Transvaal daisies and coropais. Those present were Col. John McMahon, Misses Caroline and Esther McMahon, Capt. and Mrs. Henry S. Kilbourne, Lieut. and Mrs. Truby Martin, Capt. and Mrs. John Boniface, Lieut. and Mrs. James Chaney, Lieut. and Mrs. John D. Burnett, Lieut. and Mrs. John Hauser, Lieut. and Mrs. Harold Vandever, Lieut. and Mrs. Percy Deshon, Lieut. and Mrs. Harry Pfeil, Capt. and Mrs. Joseph Janda, Capt. Charles Ferris, Lieut. Ballard Lyerly, Frederick Stewart, Bertram Frankenberg, Cliff Andrus, Joseph Andrews and the hosts.

Lieut. and Mrs. William McCleave gave a supper on Wednesday, entertaining for 22. Two large round tables were used, each decorated in an unusually pretty manner; tall silver candelsticks holding white unshaded tapers afforded soft light for the dainty white and green effects of the two tables. White chrysanthemums combined with lacey fern sprays and tied with fluffy green tulle bows were laid in the center of the tables, forming the centerpiece; later these were given to the ladies for corsage bouquets. Cunning kewpies ornamented the place cards, which echoed the green and white notes and marked the covers for Gen. and Mrs. Frederick S. Strong, Col. and Mrs. Samson Lane Faison, Col. and Mrs. John H. Guilfoyle, Maj. and Mrs. Guy G. Palmer, Maj. and Mrs. Lewis Sorley, Madame McCleave, Capt. and Mrs. Dennis Currie, Capt. and Mrs. John Corey, Mrs. Ellen Jordan, Capt. Thomas, Lieut. and Mrs. William E. Shedd, Capt. and Mrs. Frank Halstead and Lieut. Edward McCleave.

Capt. and Mrs. Gordon Kimball of the 4th Cavalry were hosts at dinner on Wednesday, entertaining for Col. and Mrs. William W. Forsyth, Mrs. Allen B. Smith, Capt. and Mrs. Clarence R. Day, Lieut. and Mrs. Kerr R. Riggs, Dr. and Mrs. George Riggs and Lieut. Raymond McQuillan. A dainty effect was attained by the use of pale pink asters arranged in a lovely Marie Antoinette basket, which stood at the center of the table, the pink shades being reflected in the shaded candelabra and the attractive place cards which were in the shape of tiny rickshaws containing as passengers pink kimonoed maidens.

Lieut. and Mrs. Roland Gaugler gave a dinner in honor of Capt. and Mrs. John Fair on Wednesday evening. Eight covers were placed about the round table, which had for decoration white lilies and ferns, the white candles echoing the lilies' lovely purity. Those present were Capt. and Mrs. John Fair, Lieut. and Mrs. Swift Martin, Lieut. and Mrs. John Reardon and Lieut. and Mrs. Roland Gaugler.

Capt. and Mrs. Pelham D. Glassford entertained at dinner on Wednesday for Maj. Ralph Harrison, Maj. Herbert O. Williams and Maj. William S. Guignard.

Dr. and Miss Haynes were hosts at dinner Wednesday, when their guests were Lieut. and Mrs. Seth Schofield and Lieut. George Keleher.

Mr. John Macaulay gave a dinner on Wednesday at the Bank residence when his guests were Miss Mary Marshall, Lieut. and Mrs. Robert Harbold, Misses Lella Wilson and Mildred Ponting, and Lieut. Eugene Owen, Wallace Philson and Oswald Saunders. Pink roses decorated the table in an artistic manner.

Col. and Mrs. Henry C. Hodges gave one of the many Wednesday dinners, their party later attending the artillery dance. A very pretty table, which had covers for 12, was decorated all in white, with white folwers for centerpiece and white-shaded candles affording the light. The affair was given in honor of Capt. and Mrs. Clyde Crusan, who are to leave the regiment on the Sheridan next week. Other guests were Capt. and Mrs. Edward Carey, Capt. and Mrs. Harry Knight, Lieut. Roy N. Jones and Miss Evelyn Hodges.

Mrs. Clyde Crusan was the guest of honor at the bridge luncheon given by Mrs. George G. Bailey on Wednesday. The guests were invited for a morning hour and enjoyed a number of rubbers of auction before the luncheon was served, when they were joined by Mrs. David Stone, Mrs. George Kumpke and Miss Stella Mayer. The luncheon table was pretty in its decorations of black-eyed Susans. Mrs. Crusan as the guest of honor was presented with an embroidered waist pattern, while the table prizes were won by Mrs. Lowe and Mrs. Hall and proved to be dainty silk stockings. The bridge guests were Mesdames Edward Carey, Thomas Lowe, Chalmers Hall, Henry Lantry, Joseph Daly, John Fair, Frank Halstead and Clyde Crusan.

Capt. and Mrs. J. S. Cecil of the 25th Infantry gave a dinner on Wednesday in honor of Gen. and Mrs. Evans, who motored out from town and later appeared at the artillery dance.

On Monday of this week Lieut. and Mrs. Swift Martin of the 4th Cavalry gave a luncheon for Gen. and Mrs. Frederick Strong and Mr. and Mrs. Percival Merritt of Boston, who are in Honolulu for a visit.

On Tuesday of this week, at Mrs. Charles Lloyd's quarters, a meeting of the women of Schofield Barracks took place for the purpose of forming classes for Red Cross work. Over 65 ladies were present, all of whom were most interested in the proposed work. Mrs. Lloyd conducted the meeting with characteristic ability, reading the pamphlets relating to the several courses, explaining the conditions and work necessary for qualification, and it was decided that the combined course of first aid, hygiene and home care of the sick would be taken, under the instruction of a medical officer of the post. The course will consist of 15 lessons, comprising both practical and theoretical work, at the end of which examinations will be held and those passing them will be given certificates from the Red Cross Society which will enable the successful candidates to be assigned to active service in time of war with the Red Cross units. Col. Frank Keefer, commanding the Medical Corps at Schofield Barracks, has been most kind in rendering all assistance toward establishing this class and has given permission for the use of one of the hospital wards in which the classes will be held, under the supervision of Maj. Horace Bloombergh. After the discussion Mrs. Augustine McIntyre was elected president of the class and Mrs. Charles Lloyd secretary. Just here it is appropriate to mention Mrs. McIntyre's distinguished service in Austria-Hungary as a Red Cross nurse. For 11 months, while Capt. McIntyre was stationed in Vienna, Mrs. McIntyre worked in the American Red Cross hospital in Vienna under the supervision of Dr. Carey I. Snoddy, formerly a medical officer in the United States army, and for this work was, with 12 other American Red Cross nurses and Mrs. Carey Snoddy, decorated with the Red Cross war decoration. This is never given except for volunteer hospital service under actual war conditions. The first meeting of the class will take place as soon as the necessary books can be obtained from Washington.

Mrs. Horace Bloombergh entertained in a charming way on Thursday afternoon, giving an auction tea, to which 16 ladies of the garrison were invited. Four tables for auction were placed through the living rooms, which were decorated with vases of pink roses. Here an unusually interesting series of rubbers passed the afternoon very pleasantly. A novel and delightful feature of the games was the new method in order of playing for the rubber, without scoring points. When the ladies were seated each one was presented with a dainty basket, tied with different colored ribbons. One table had apple green, one pink, one yellow and one red. At the conclusion of each rubber the winning partners were presented with a dainty article for the sewing basket, the rewards for the four rubbers being scissors, ribbon-runners, emery bags, spools of thread and thimbles, the novel manner of winning them occasioning much pleasant competition. Later a delicious three-course tea was served. Mrs. Bloombergh's guests at this hospitable affair were Mesdames Frederick Strong, John Guilfoyle, Frank Keefer, Pelham Glassford, Eugene H. Hartnett, Jerome Pillow, Joseph Daly, Ellen Jordan, Charles Daly, Frederick Pick, Raymond Pratt, John Corey, George Callender, Crandall and Henry Lantry.

On Tuesday Mrs. Frank Keefer gave a "golf luncheon" after the playing of the lower nine holes on the golf course. Mrs. Keefer gave an attractive silver cup to the winner of the tournament, who proved to be Mrs. Charles Lloyd. The cup was inscribed "Schofield Barracks, Golf—1916." Mrs. Jerome Pillow won the second prize, a golf ball, and Mrs. Gustav
